Civic Leadership

Build a new culture of civic leadership that allows our region to thrive.

Chicago benefits from a long, distinctive history of civic leadership and private sector commitment to improving our region. We celebrate the accomplishments of Chicago's leadership culture. At the same time, the culture of leadership in Chicago has sometimes de-legitimized critical institutions, excluded important stakeholders, and broken trust between communities.

Civic Consulting is working to build a new culture of civic leadership where leaders work across sectors, function areas, racial divides, and other traditional silos solve the fundamental issues – and capture the opportunities – necessary for Chicago to be a great place for everyone to live in and work.

OUTPUTS

Over the past year, Civic Consulting Alliance has:

- Developed a framework of the culture of civic leadership in a discussion paper that was circulated, discussed with nearly 100 people.
- Engaged over 80 people to understand their perspectives on current and future civic leadership and to gather suggestions on how to identify and overcome barriers to inclusion and equitable socioeconomic outcomes for all Chicagoans.
- Began development of a network map of over 650 civic leaders in Chicago to identify key influencers and opportunities to build bridges between isolated groups.
